Have You Experienced a “God Moment”?

If you could share a story of seeing God's work in your life, please tell me or send it to me. The story can be anonymous or signed, and all are invited to participate. Betsy

Margaret Watson describes this experience:

Years ago, as a child growing up in the Midwest, I was invited by a neighbor to see "a haunted house" in the area. The house was old and in a state of collapse with the floor falling into the cellar. The house, I learned later, was the last stop on the Underground Railway where escaped slaves stayed overnight and then were taken about thirty miles away to the Detroit River which the men crossed and were free in Canada. A widow named Mary Muir lived alone in the old house and kept her secret for helping those who sought freedom. The men slept in the cellar overnight. The entrance to the cellar was a trap door in the living room over which Mrs. Muir placed a rug. One night someone tipped off the investigators that escaped slaves were in Mrs. Muir's house. The house was searched, but during that time, she placed a rocking chair on the rug covering the trap door and sat there knitting while the search was made. The investigators did not find anyone that night. The house is gone now, but years later I was driving down the streets of Windsor, Ontario, and saw children playing on the sidewalk, children who might well have been descended from those who had escaped over the Detroit River into Canada. That moment I shall never forget. I paused and gave thanks to God for all those who risk everything they have to help someone abused or persecuted by a government or by social customs. May God bless them and those whom they rescued.
